Business Leaders – Maximize Your Time

Receive comprehensive Executive Summaries of books selected especially for business leaders worldwide. Each summary is targeted at leading-edge business concepts, technologies, organizational effectiveness, and geo-political trends that affect your bottom line.

With over 5,400 business books published each year in the U.S. alone, and with the publishers touting each as “must read,” it makes sense for time-challenged business leaders to look for unbiased, professional recommendations about what to read — in order to lead!

After reading our Executive Summary (a 10-15 minute read) you can make an informed decision whether to buy the book for further study, or save your precious time for the next important book.

Our Executive Summaries

Each book we summarize is selected based on its own merits: relevance to today’s business leaders, importance of ideas, originality of thought, and clarity of concept. Each summary is written by a noted author and veteran New York Times business writer. The insightful treatment of selected books will give you the important take-away points. Our writer places each book in context: marketing, sales, finance and stakeholders.

Our Subscription Service

Every two weeks we e-mail you a notice that your new Executive Summary of the most important business book we see in the bookstores is ready for you to download. Your subscription will include 26 Executive Summaries and access to our archives, where you will find previously published executive summaries, and summaries of business book classics — must reads for all leaders, today and tomorrow.

Our Goal

To aid busy subscribers in selecting essential books to read. Our Executive Summaries are targeted toward the top three tiers of business leaders/managers worldwide — and to those aspiring to leadership positions.

We only select books most likely to generate real interest and enthusiasm among subscribers. Only the most relevant books are summarized.
